Government Conclusions vs. Critics Conclusions

XR9_4. In 2008 the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST), an agency of the U.S. Department of Commerce, issued a report concluding that fires, started by debris from the collapse of the North Tower, caused World Trade Center Building 7 to collapse. Critics, including a group of 3,000 architects and engineers, have disputed the conclusions of the government's report, arguing that only the use of explosives in a controlled demolition can account for Building 7's collapse. Researchers at the University of Alaska Fairbanks have since performed computer modeling of Building 7's collapse and also concluded that fires could not have caused the collapse. Are you more inclined to believe the government's conclusion that fires caused Building 7's collapse, or the critics that believe explosives were used?
